16:00 Mariengarten Schlitters Gemmo introductory course
Spring is the sign of new beginnings and the trees are literally full of sap and their buds carry all of this! As with wild herbs, the most important ingredient in the leaves is chlorophyll. It purifies the blood, helps build new blood cells and has a detoxifying effect. FNL herbal expert Richard Rieser leads and takes the participants along the Zillerauen and into the realm of native trees and their healing powers. Participation in the courses is only possible with registration under tel. +43 664 73145733 or info.mariengarten@gmx.at possible!

20:00 Steudltenn Uderns Steudltenn: EXTRAWURST
It's actually just a formality: the general meeting of a tennis club is supposed to vote on the purchase of a new grill for the club's celebrations. Normally not a problem - if it weren't for the suggestion that the only Turkish member of the club should also finance its own barbecue. As is well known, devout Muslims are not allowed to put their grilled sausages on a grill with pork. A well-intentioned idea, but it triggers immense discussions and puts the actually peaceful club to the acid test. The little conflict about the grill is getting deeper and deeper into the relationships between the members. It's about more than a grill... It's about how we live together. Especially since the boundaries between "right and left", "tolerant and intolerant", "religious and non-believer" are much more fluid than one might think. Awarded the Monica Bleibtreu Prize 2020 in the "Comedy" category. As club members, the viewers are a direct part of what is happening and experience how a society can completely disintegrate. And that in a fast, highly pointed and very topical comedy. More information and tickets at: www.steudltenn.com

20:00 SichtBar Fügen Findling

20 years Hospitzteam Zillertal - We celebrate with Findling. The Zillertal hospice team We accompany seriously ill and dying people and their families on a voluntary basis, free of charge, during difficult, stressful times. But they are also there for the families afterwards, so that they can get through the difficult time of mourning together. We give time, heart and ear, comfort, hope and keep silent together - we are 'simply' there. Appreciation, humanity, mindfulness and confidentiality are values that are a matter of course in our work. Every person we accompany should feel that 'you are important to us because YOU are there' and that 'you are important to us, to the end'. Findling The Tyrolean music group Findling has been playing self-composed songs in Tyrolean dialect for seventeen years. In their songs they sing about the ups, downs and challenges of life and, with a wink, like to focus on human shortcomings. The group convinces their audience above all with a great musical feeling and the touching lyrics. The six musicians play on instruments of classical folk music, the music moves somewhere between new folk music and songwriting. Entry fee: voluntary donations

20:00 Festhalle Fügen Thomas Stipsits

When Thomas Stipsits started doing cabaret, he didn't have a driver's license. In the meantime he has managed the triple: wife, child and building society contract. To celebrate this triple, he has packed his satchel full of Stinatz delicacies of the last programs and will be fully at your disposal on this evening. A small work show of the Burgenland - Styrian mixture, spiced with glimpses of the new solo program, so "Quasi" a "Best Of". In the process, Stipsits once again shows his ability to change: classic Austrian characters are lovingly and winkingly fluffed up through exaggeration. In addition to all this, Stipsits of course still has enough room to make fun of politics and society, to present his voice imitations in crazy songs and to joke spontaneously with the audience. His "Quasi Best Of" impresses with lots of situational comedy and a varied parade of absurdly funny scenes and characters, in which self-irony and insider anecdotes are not neglected. Tickets: Ö-Ticket, banks, tobacconists and www.lindnermusic.at, entry from 07.00 p.m.
